Welcome to Royal Delft

Visitors to Royal Delft experience authentic Dutch craftsmanship. Here, paintbrushes carefully touch the white earthenware, whilst elsewhere clay is poured into handmade moulds. Dutch craftsmen have been creating iconic Delft Blue for almost 400 years. Royal Delft, established in 1653, is the last remaining Delftware factory from the 17th century. Visitors discover the history, craftsmanship and innovation of this royal company during a visit.

Extended visits

Painting workshop

Visitors paint their own tile and discover what it is like to be a master painter at Royal Delft. The workshop takes one hour and can be booked for 2 to 100 people. The workshop price does not include a guided tour.

The original tile workshop € 29,00

Visitors can choose their own design and paint with the original black paint that turns blue in the kiln. After the workshop, the piece is fired and shipped (shipping costs not included).

DIY tile workshop € 27,50

This workshop is with blue paint and decorated with a Dutch landscape. After the workshop, the tile is placed in a frame and ready to take home straight away.

Food & beverages

Our food and beverages, tea and coffee are available for groups from 10 to 120 people. A lunch at Royal Delft takes about 1 hour. The prices for these activities do not include a guided tour.
